

Michael Plunkett
President and CEO

Michael Plunkett graciously serves as President and CEO of the Association for Postal Commerce (PostCom). Mr. Plunkett is also President of the Delivery Technology Advocacy Council, a nonprofit launched in 2020 to concentrate on delivery and logistics technologies and in January 2024 was appointed President and Executive Director of ACMA.

Prior to PostCom, Mr. Plunkett accumulated more than 25 years Postal experience with the United States Postal Service. During his distinguished career he performed in a diverse multitude of roles concentrating in technical operations, both team and executive level managerial positions as well as other various positions in operations, marketing, product development and pricing.

As a leader within the Postal Service's management team, Mr. Plunkett developed a well-earned reputation for innovation. He aided in the approval for the USPS' first negotiated service agreement and helped lay the groundwork for pricing agreements for domestic services. Mr. Plunkett was essential in the development of the forever stamp and the priority mail flat rate box.
